Col. Henry Wooldrige, who died in 1899, was the person responsible for the famous monuments. All were carved and placed on the grounds before Mr. Wooldridge's death. It has been said that the monuments cost approximately $6,000. Col. Wooldridge is the only person buried in the lot. His body is in the stone vault in front of the statue. The slab on top of the vault has a double-barreled shotgun carved on it.
